IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D., Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for February 22

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

JESUS APPOINTS AND TEACHES THE TWELVE

LESSON TEXT—Luke 6:12-26.
GOLDEN TEXT—Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven.—Matthew 5:16.

God is sovereign and has all power. He might, therefore, perform His works without the help of man, and on many an occasion He does just that.

That fact makes it all the more glorious that He constantly works through men, giving to them the privilege of companionship with Him in service. Sinful and weak though they may have been, they become strong and holy in Him, able to do valiant service in His name.

I. Appointed to Serve Christ (vv. 12-19).

It is the constant teaching of Scripture that those called to serve God are not self-appointed. They are

1. Chosen by Him (vv. 12, 13). He chooses whom He will, gives them the gifts and the grace for ministry (and both are important), and provides them a place of service. It is vital to the servant of Christ that he know that he has been chosen and called of the Lord. Only with that assurance can he meet the problems and bear the burdens of the work.

Observe that it was after a night of prayer that Jesus appointed the twelve. How many churches give that much prayer to the choosing of its leaders? Do we not need it far more than did our Lord?

2. Called from Many Walks of Life (vv. 14-16). The apostles were men of widely differing gifts, temperaments, and personal characteristics. Some had unusual ability, others apparently were of ordinary qualifications. They were of many occupations, fishermen, a tax gatherer, etc.; but not one was by profession a preacher or priest.

Were men to choose for such offices they would look within the narrow limits of a few learned professions, with certain nationalities preferred, and with position in life an important factor. God cuts across every man-made limitation and calls His workers as He sees fit.

3. Companions in Service (vv. 17-19). At once the twelve received their introduction to service to the great multitude diseased, demon possessed, in spiritual need. It was Jesus who healed them (and notice that "he healed them all," v. 19), but verse 17 tells us that the newly appointed apostles came and stood with Him. They had fellowship with the healing and serving Christ, just as we may have it in service for Him today.

II. Prepared to Live for Christ (vv. 20-26).

Service for Christ is as much (perhaps we should say, more) by life as by ministry. The twelve needed instruction that their spiritual perspective might be right. He tells them

1. How to Meet Difficulties (vv. 20-23). Poverty, hunger, weeping, being hated for Christ's sake, these were the things that Jesus knew His servants might expect, so He prepared them. They were told that these things need not disturb them, for there is a kingdom coming; there will be a time when every hunger will be satisfied, when weeping shall turn to laughter.

Hatred for Christ's sake is declared to be the occasion for an outburst of joy because of the reward which awaits in heaven. Scripture speaks much of rewards, and we do well to encourage ourselves and other Christians by the blessed prospect.

Meeting difficulties is a matter of having mental and spiritual eyes rightly focused. If we do, we can see right through them and see that on the other side there is blessing.

But there are temptations in another direction, so He tells them

2. How to Avoid Dangers (vv. 24-26). Jesus is here speaking of those who, lacking true spiritual vision, revel in the satisfaction of worldly things without a thought of God. The passage, however, may well be applied to the worker for Christ. Often he will be tempted to covet the wealth, the prosperity, the pleasures, and popularity of those round about him.

The question which comes to him is, Why should I and my family not share these pleasant things? Therein lies a temptation to become worldly-minded, centered in the temporalities of life. Let him learn that money in itself cannot bring lasting joy; that the fullness of this world is soon exchanged for an eternal emptiness; that the shallow laughter of this world's fun rapidly gives way to weeping.

The praise of men—popularity with those who know not Christ—is a fickle thing. One day they will praise a man to the skies, and the next day no evil word or disgraceful treatment is spared to destroy and dishearten him.

The American BANKING System IS Democracy at its Best

There are some 16,000 American banks, each owned and operated by local citizens. Separate in a sense—yet they are knit together into one great 'system' by the common aim of service. Responsive to the needs of each community, yet they are geared to meet the nation's needs instantly in its hour of crisis. There's nothing like it elsewhere; it's the envy of every other country; it's democracy functioning at its very best.
